FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

When should I see my family doctor?

Your family doctor remains your primary care provider and should be seen for general health concerns, acute injuries not requiring emergency care and the management of chronic medical conditions. The Mobility Clinic will provide a written report and recommendations to your family doctor after each visit.

When should I go to the Mobility Clinic?

We recommend that all patients be seen yearly for a comprehensive general assessment. Patients can also be seen as needed to address a specific concern including those related to bowel and bladder, sexual health and fertility, pain, spasticity, autonomic dysreflexia, skin breakdown, mental health, seating and mobility and system navigation.

When should I see my specialist?

We encourage that you continue to see your regular specialists. There may be some overlap in care but often different issues are addressed. The Mobility Clinic will also consult with specialists on your behalf and make referrals as needed.
